

NuCamp
Nuffield College
Centre for Applied
Macro Policy

CALL FOR PAPERS

2nd OXFORD NUCAMP VIRTUAL PHD WORKSHOP

June 15 - 16, 2021

The Nuffield College Centre for Applied Macro Policy (NuCamp) at the University of Oxford invites submissions to its 2nd Virtual PhD Workshop, to be held via Zoom on June 15-16. The workshop will give current PhD students an opportunity to present their work and receive feedback despite current travel restrictions.

We are delighted to confirm the following keynote speakers for this year's workshop:

Hélène Rey, Lord Bagri Professor of Economics, London Business School

Ayşegül Şahin, Richard J. Gonzalez Regents Chair in Economics, UT Austin

We are also happy to announce a special panel on the topic of 'mental health in academia'. For this, Michael McMahon (Oxford), Abdoulaye Ndiaye (NYU), Anna Stansbury (Harvard), and Vania Stavrakeva (LBS) have kindly agreed to share their personal take on individual and collective efforts to improve mental health in the profession.

Submissions are welcome in all areas of empirical and theoretical macroeconomics. The workshop is particularly aimed at those going on the job market next year but submissions from PhD students at earlier stages who would benefit from presenting will be considered.

Presentations will be followed by a discussion. Authors of submitted papers might be asked to discuss a paper in their field. Senior faculty will attend the presentations and provide feedback. Last year's programme can be found here: 1st Oxford NuCamp PhD Workshop.

The deadline for submissions is Monday, May 24 12:00pm BST. Please send submissions and expressions of interest in attending to ox.phd.macro@gmail.com. Decisions will be announced by Tuesday, June 1.

The Organizing Committee:

Alexander Haas, University of Oxford

Matthew McKernan, University of Oxford

Tatjana Schulze, University of Oxford

NuCamp is a research centre at Nuffield College, Oxford. It offers an environment in which academics and policymakers can freely discuss current macroeconomic, international macroeconomic and macro-financial policy questions.